Absolut unveils limited edition bottle and first-ever onsite activation for Tomorrowland 2023

Absolut Vodka and Tomorrowland have released a limited-edition bottle inspired by the spectacle of the festival and announced an on-site experience for festival attendees.

Absolut is launching its third annual limited-edition bottle and an Instagram competition to win a festival experience as part of its collaboration with the electronic music festival Tomorrowland. The brand will also be staging its first-ever activation for festival attendees to enjoy.

Tomorrowland, with a crowd of 400,000, 14 stages and 600 artists, is the largest electronic dance music festival in the world. Created as part of Tomorrowland's United We Dance campaign, the unique bottle design symbolises the festival spirit of unlimited freedom with red and orange butterflies that visualise the positive change – and the new beginnings that the festival brings.

Inspired by the pyrotechnics and spectacle that excites and elevates the Belgium-based festival, the limited edition bottle design also embodies how the open-air dancefloor can bring everyone together, release inhibitions and fuel creative expression. For the first time, the bottles feature a QR code on the medallion, for people in Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxemburg and Malta to enter the Absolut Drop It Challenge, which gives electronic music aficionados the chance to win a Tomorrowland festival package.

The Instagram Reels challenge features a bespoke audio track and video template for entrants to record their own dance content. As well as using the hashtag #UnitedWeDance, entrants will need to upload their video to the competition landing page to qualify. All Absolut Drop It Challenge videos tagged with #UnitedWeDance will be included in a digital AR mural that will live online.

To keep festival attendees dancing all weekend, Absolut's first-ever fully immersive, high-energy on-site experience. The pop-up will allow visitors to choose their own adventure, enjoying countless interactive and shareable moments as they journey through the space. Here they'll be able to enjoy a surprise element with a fun twist, that taps into the energy and excitement of Tomorrowland.

Tad Greenough, Global Creative Director, The Absolut Company, said: *"Absolut Vodka and Tomorrowland share the belief that what unites us is stronger than what divides us. About United We Dance Partnership

Absolut and Tomorrowland share a vision for a more open, inclusive, and diverse world. We also share the belief that what unites is stronger than what divides us.

We know that great things happen when we mix and come together. And there is no more powerful way to bring people together than the universal language of music. Music has the power not just to entertain, but to shape cultural attitudes, norms and expectations across decades, age groups and borders. This brings an immense responsibility to ensure that the industry is representing and celebrating the beauty of difference, standing in solidarity with artists and fans across all racial and cultural backgrounds.

The music industry holds a mirror up to the world – and we want to play our part in making sure that we're proud of what we see. We believe that in partnership, using our combined influence and reach, we can accelerate equality in the music industry – and the wider world – to create a better tomorrow.

Absolut and Tomorrowland are championing more inclusive and diverse representation in the music industry, creating a movement to inspire wider cultural change. Through both immediate and longer-term action, we will play our part in ensuring representation for all backgrounds on stage and bring together diverse perspectives to drive awareness and meaningful action on a global scale.
